I. INTRODUCTION

2 This lawsuit is one of many in plaintiff’s crusade against trans fat, on behalf
3 of a plaintiff who admittedly has suffered no injury from the purportedly harmful
4 ingredient and has not relied on the allegedly misleading label, on behalf of a 5 putative class that is not suitable for certification. Prior to class certification, 6 federal courts impose significant restrictions on plaintiffs’ discovery, in addition to 7 the relevancy and proportionality requirements under Rule 26. Ms. Hawkins flouts
8 these limitations, serving Requests for Production and Interrogatories seeking over 9 a decade’s worth of information and documents on expansive and irrelevant topics,
10 including for example, products that Kroger does not even sell. But filing a putative
11 class action does not entitle Plaintiff to any and all discovery carte blanche. In no 12 world is this far-reaching discovery relevant and proportional to the needs of the 13 case at this pre-certification stage. Kroger thus asserted its many valid objections 14 on these bases (and more) in response to this discovery.

15 Ms. Hawkins's counsel disputed Kroger's objections and, without explaining 16 how this discovery falls within the scope of Rule 26 (it does not), demanded it all 17 now. After an initial meet and confer, in the interest of avoiding court intervention, 18 Kroger offered to supplement its responses. Ms. Hawkins's counsel refused and 19 insisted on running immediately to the Court. The Court, however, set a briefing 20 schedule two weeks out so Kroger could supplement, which it did on July 11. Ms.
21 Hawkins's counsel never attempted to meet and confer on those supplemental 22 responses and instead hastily filed this motion to compel nearly all of her requests.

23 Her motion fails on a number of independent grounds. As an initial matter, 24 Ms. Hawkins did not sufficiently confer on Kroger’s supplemental responses as 25 required by Federal, Local, and this Court’s chamber rules. This alone is grounds to 26 deny the motion. In any event, as to all discovery, she has not met and cannot meet 27 her burden of showing—as instructed by this Court at the June 5, 2019 hearing—28 her discovery is relevant and proportional at the pre-class certification phase.

Indeed, Ms. Hawkins does not even attempt to explain the relevance of her requests to her claims or class certification, or how the burden of complying with her all-encompassing requests could be proportional to the benefit (if any) of production at this stage. Nor does she make the showing required to obtain pre-class certification discovery. She likewise fails to make these showings for the sweeping time periods she applies to all her requests. Each of her discovery requests also suffers from additional defects. Kroger's objections are well-founded and responses are sufficient, and Ms. Hawkins fails to carry her burden to demonstrate otherwise.

II. BACKGROUND

On October 15, 2015, plaintiff Shavonda Hawkins filed this putative class action premised on the labeling and purported use of trace amounts of trans fat in Kroger Bread Crumbs (“KBC”). Ms. Hawkins alleges she purchased KBC six times per year from 2001 until her final purchase in 2015, at which time she allegedly began reading articles about possible health dangers from over-consumption of certain amounts of trans fat. Id. ¶¶ 17–72, 75, 111. These reports allegedly led her to conclude that KBC were harmful and the “0g Trans Fat” statement on the front of the KBC packaging—which is identical to the federally-mandated statement in the nutrition label on the package—is misleading. Id. ¶¶ 76, 104. On these grounds, Ms. Hawkins brings claims for violations of the California Unfair Competition Laws, Consumer Legal Remedies Act, False Advertising Law, and claims for breach of warranty. Id. ¶¶ 122–87. She proposes two putative classes: a class of “[a]ll persons who purchased in the United States, on or after January 1, 2008, Kroger bread crumb products containing partially hydrogenated oil [‘PHO’]”; with a subclass for those who purchased KBC products “containing the front labeling claim ‘0g Trans Fat.’” Dkt. 1 ¶ 114.

On May 15, 2019, Ms. Hawkins served Requests for Production and Interrogatories. Mot. at 1:8–9. The requests were broadly drafted (among other defects), seeking over a decade of documents and information from Kroger on 1 expansive topics reaching far beyond the matters at issue. See Dkt. 69-2 Exs. 1–2.

 2 On June 17, Kroger served its responses and well-founded objections. Decl. of H.
 3 Canner (“Decl.”) ¶ 2, filed herewith. On June 19, Ms. Hawkins’s counsel requested
 4 to meet and confer without identifying any bases for the discovery, and the parties
 5 scheduled a call for June 28. Id. ¶ 3. Prior to the call, Ms. Hawkins’s counsel sent a 6 letter, which did not explain why Ms. Hawkins is entitled to the discovery under 7 Rule 26, but rather merely argued that each of Kroger’s objections was technically 8 insufficient because they are purportedly “boilerplate” (they are not). Id. ¶ 4.

9 On the meet and confer call, Ms. Hawkins’s counsel again failed to explain
 10 why she has any right to the requested discovery, nor did she meaningfully narrow 11 any of her requests. Id. ¶ 5. In an effort to avoid court intervention, Kroger offered 12 to supplement its responses to both the Interrogatories and Requests for Production.
 13 Id. Nonetheless, counsel insisted on filing a motion to compel immediately. Id.
 14 Kroger objected the motion was premature, but Ms. Hawkins’s counsel arranged a 15 call with the Court for July 8. Id. ¶¶ 5–6. The clerk set a schedule two weeks out to 16 allow Kroger to first supplement its responses (Dkt. 63), which it did on July 11,
 17 agreeing to provide information and documents, while preserving its valid
 18 objections. Id. ¶ 6. Kroger produced product labels the week of July 22. Id. ¶ 7.
 19 Ms. Hawkins’s counsel never attempted to meet and confer regarding Kroger’s
 20 supplemental responses. Id. ¶ 8. Instead, she filed her motion, repeating the same 21 hollow arguments as in the June 26 letter.

22 III. LEGAL STANDARD

23 On a motion to compel, the moving party has the burden of identifying for 24 “each disputed response,” why the information sought is relevant and proportional 25 to the needs of the case under Rule 26(b)(1), and why the objections are not 26 justified. Perrotte v. Johnson, 2019 WL 176786, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Jan. 11, 2019);
 27 see Munoz v. InGenesis STGI Partners, LLC, 2015 WL 13554994, at *2 (S.D. Cal.
 28 July 15, 2015) (“The party seeking to compel discovery has the burden of

1 establishing that its request satisfies the relevancy requirements of Rule 26(b)(1).”);
 2 Civ. Chamber R. V.F. (“The discovery motion must contain at a minimum . . . an
 3 explanation as to why the response is inadequate . . . and the legal authority
 4 supporting the motion.”). In addition, a party may move to compel discovery only 5 upon “certification that the movant has in good faith conferred or attempted to 6 confer with the opposing party.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)(1); see L.R. 26.1; Hon.
 7 Major Civ. Chamber Rules V.A. If those burdens are met, the opposing party “has 8 the burden of showing that the discovery should be prohibited, and the burden of 9 clarifying, explaining, and supporting its objections.” Munoz, 2015 WL 13554994,
 10 at *2. As discussed below, Ms. Hawkins fails to meet her burdens.

11           IV. THE MOTION TO COMPEL SHOULD BE DENIED.

12           A. Ms. Hawkins’s Motion and Discovery Suffers Numerous General Defects

13           1. Ms. Hawkins’s Counsel Failed to Meet and Confer on the 14           Supplemental Discovery Responses, and Her Motion May Be 15           Denied On That Basis.

16           As an initial matter, Ms. Hawkins’s motion is barred—at least as to the 17 several requests Kroger supplemented—because her counsel failed to sufficiently 18 meet and confer prior to filing.<sup>1</sup> Under Rule 37(a)(1), a party must “in good faith 19 confer[] or attempt[] to confer” prior to filing a motion to compel. Fed. R. Civ. P.
 20 37(a)(1); Robinson v. Potter, 453 F.3d 990, 994–95 (8th Cir. 2006) (affirming 21 denial of motion to compel for failure to sufficiently meet and confer); Millare v.
 22 Stratton, 2017 WL 4102398, at *1 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 15, 2017) (“Failure to meet and 23 confer in good faith is grounds for denial.”). The Local Rules and Judge Major’s
 24 Chamber Rules explicitly require the conference be “in person” or “by telephone”
 25 and the issues discussed thoroughly. L.R. 26.1; Civ. Chamber R. V.A.

26
 27           <sup>1</sup> In particular, Kroger supplemented its responses to Interrogatory Nos. 1, 4, 28 5, 7, 8 and Request for Production Nos. 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 14, 15. Dkt. 69-2 Exs. 7, 8.

1       Although the parties discussed Kroger’s initial responses by telephone on 2 June 28, Ms. Hawkins’s counsel never attempted to meet and confer after Kroger
3 substantially supplemented its responses on July 11. Decl. ¶¶ 6–8. Rather, Ms.
4 Hawkins’s counsel only emailed Kroger to ask about its production, and to confirm 5 Kroger’s position regarding the three “narrowed” document requests offered prior 6 to Kroger’s supplemental responses. Id. ¶ 8. But that does not constitute a good
7 faith effort to meet and confer, let alone one over the phone. Jenkins v. U.S., 90
8 Fed. Cl. 585, 589 (2009) (denying motion to compel where parties had 9 “conversations” about discovery, but plaintiff’s counsel failed to confer “after 10 plaintiff’s receipt of the responses”). Ms. Hawkins failed to satisfy this 11 prerequisite, which independently warrants denial of her motion.

2. Ms. Hawkins Fails To Meet Her Burden To Show Her Requests Are Relevant and Proportional at This Stage of the Case.

14 Even if the Court considers the motion, virtually all of the discovery Ms.
15 Hawkins seeks is irrelevant or otherwise fails to meet the proportionality
16 requirements under Rule 26 (among other defects). As the moving party, she bears 17 the burden of showing the requested discovery is relevant and proportional under 18 Rule 26(b)(1). Munoz, 2015 WL 13554994, at *2. At the pre-class certification
19 phase, discovery is even further limited and requires a heightened showing. See 20 infra at 6. Ms. Hawkins glosses over these foundational requirements, and instead
21 spends nearly her entire motion attacking (unsuccessfully) the format of Kroger's
22 objections.<sup>2</sup> She is required—and failed—to do far more.

24       <sup>2</sup> Contrary to Ms. Hawkins's repeated contention (Mot. at 5:1–6:6, 8:6), 25 Kroger is not required to explain in detail every ground for its objections in the 26 responses—if it did, there would be no need for an opposition. Rather, a party 27 objecting to discovery “has the burden of clarifying, explaining, and supporting its 28 objections” in its opposition. Munoz, 2015 WL 13554994, at *2. Because of page limitations, Kroger does not address each of its objections herein, but incorporates and preserves the objections in its discovery responses. See Dkt. 69-2 Exs. 7, 8.
This includes Kroger’s objections that Ms. Hawkins’s Interrogatories are improperly compound and/or conjunctive, and that she therefore has fewer than 17 remaining interrogatories under Rule 33. See Mot. at 8:1.

Indeed, this Court expressly stated at the June 5, 2019 hearing that all discovery must be relevant and proportional at this pre-class certification stage. Ms. Hawkins apparently attempts to bypass this requirement by arguing “the Court’s Scheduling Order does not limit discovery in any way.” Mot. at 10:13. She ignores this Court’s instruction, as well as the Federal Rules. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(a)(1) (requiring proportionality). She further overlooks the authority in this Circuit recognizing significant limitations on pre-class certification discovery.

Regardless of whether discovery is bifurcated, “pre-class certification . . . discovery . . . is limited to certification issues such as the number of class members, the existence of common questions, typicality of claims, and the representative’s ability to represent the class.” Gusman v. Comcast Corp., 298 F.R.D. 592, 595 (S.D. Cal. 2014); Owino v. Corecivic, Inc., 2019 WL 2867278, at *2 (S.D. Cal. July 3, 2019) (same). Moreover, Ms. Hawkins may only obtain pre-certification discovery if she makes specific showings—she did not. As the Ninth Circuit explained in Mantolete v. Bolger, 767 F.2d 1416, 1424 (9th Cir. 1985):

Although in some cases a district court should allow discovery to aid the determination of whether a class action is maintainable, the plaintiff bears the burden of advancing a prima facie showing that the class action requirements of Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 are satisfied or that discovery is likely to produce substantiation of the class allegations. Absent such a showing, a trial court’s refusal to allow class discovery is not an abuse of discretion.

Id. When evaluating specific requests, the court considers “its need, the time required, and the probability of discovery resolving any factual issue necessary for the determination. Where the necessary factual issues may be resolved without discovery, it is not required.” Thomas-Byass v. Michael Kors Stores (Cal.), Inc., 2015 WL 5568609, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 22, 2015). In light of these many restrictions, Kroger objected to the disputed discovery requests on these grounds.

Although Ms. Hawkins mentions these requirements in her brief—relevance, proportionality, and pre-certification limits—she never explains how each of them

1 are met. First, the only point in her brief where she even broaches relevance is 2 where she attempts to dispute Kroger’s relevance objections. Mot. at 5–7. But she
 3 makes only the bare assertion that a few of her requests seek relevant information,
 4 without any explanation. Id. at 6:6–10, 7:14–18. That falls short of her burden.
 5 Second, she quotes proportionality as the “Legal Standard” (id. at 1:20–25), but 6 never applies it. Instead, she makes the conclusory (and incorrect) statement that 7 Kroger bears this burden, and makes no effort to explain how her requests
 8 overcome this restriction. Id. at 5:8–10.<sup>3</sup> Third, she notes the specific showing for 9 pre-certification discovery (id. at 6:25–7:11), but stops there. Nowhere does she 10 outline how her discovery is “likely” to substantiate class allegations (it is not).

11 Ms. Hawkins’s failure to meet these burdens is grounds to deny her motion.
 12 Mantolete, 767 F.2d at 1425 (affirming denial of motion to compel where plaintiff 13 failed to show the requests “will produce persuasive information substantiating the 14 class action allegations”); Thomas-Byass, 2015 WL 5568609, at *4 (same);
 15 Ortolani v. Freedom Mtg. Corp., 2018 WL 324813, *3 (C.D. Cal. Jan. 8, 2018)
 16 (same). She cannot remedy this failure in her reply. See In re Donnelly, 2019 WL
 17 3284759, *1 (9th Cir. 2019) (affirming court’s refusal to consider arguments “raised 18 for the first time in [the] reply brief”); see infra Part IV.B (addressing each request).

19 3. Ms. Hawkins’s Discovery Time Periods Violate Rule 26(b)(1)

20 In any event, Ms. Hawkins’s discovery requests all span either (i) January 1, 21 2006 to present, or (ii) January 1, 2010 through May 31, 2018, which she refers to 22 as “class period,” without explanation. Dkt. 69-2 Exs. 1, 2. These periods are 23 untethered to the realities of this case. Ms. Hawkins bears the burden of showing 24 these ranges are entirely relevant and proportional, but absent from her brief is any

25
 26 <sup>3</sup> Ms. Hawkins conflates demonstrating “undue burden” with proportionality.
 27 Mot. at 5:6–17 (citing Shaw v. Experian Info. Sol’ns, Inc., 306 F.R.D. 293, 301 28 (S.D. Cal. 2015) (discussing “undue burden” under Rule 26(b)(2)(C))). Ms.
 Hawkins cites another case in support that pre-dates the 2015 addition of the proportionality requirement to the Federal Rules, and is thus inapplicable. Id. at 5:17–19 (citing Thomas v. Cate, 715 F. Supp. 2d 1012 (E.D. Cal. 2010)).

1 explanation linking these sweeping periods to class certification or the matters at 2 issue. At most, she argues that in some cases discovery might extend outside the 3 limitations period, but says nothing to justify why it should here. Mot. at 10:28–
 4 11:28.<sup>4</sup> Gathering information from a decade ago or longer (to the extent it is even 5 accessible) is objectively unduly burdensome, and disproportionate to the minimal 6 benefit, if any, from production. Kroger identifies the relevant time period as the 7 four years preceding the complaint, because the statutes of limitations for Ms.
 8 Hawkins’s claims are three and four years. Dkt. 65 at 25; Red v. Kraft Foods Inc., 9 2011 WL 13128159, at *2 (C.D. Cal. July 25, 2011) (in case brought by Ms.
 10 Hawkins’s counsel, court limited discovery to four year limitations period, because 11 plaintiff failed to explain how broader period is relevant); Mot. at 11:4–5.

12 B. Ms. Hawkins’s Motion Should Be Denied on Numerous Request-Specific 13 Grounds.<sup>5</sup>

14 Each of the discovery Requests suffer additional defects and Kroger’s 15 objections should be sustained.

16 1. Products Not at Issue (Rog. Nos. 3, 6)

 18
 19       <sup>4</sup> The cases she cites in support are inapposite. Mot. at 11:4–19. In both 20 cases, the court concluded the moving party, unlike Ms. Hawkins, met its Rule 21 26(b)(1) burdens. Allen v. Similasan Corp., 2014 WL 1672594, at *2–3 (S.D. Cal.
 22 Apr. 28, 2014); Gottesman v. Santana, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 196260 (S.D. Cal.
 23 Nov. 28, 2017). Further, In Allen, the court permitted discovery post-dating the 24 complaint because plaintiff alleged the defendant’s misconduct continued after 25 filing and sought injunctive relief, neither of which is true here. 2014 WL 1672594,
 26 at *2. Gottesman did not even involve a putative class representative seeking pre-
 27 certification discovery. 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 196260, at *5.

28       <sup>5</sup> Kroger preserves its privilege and work product objections, and informed 29 Ms. Hawkins that to the extent it withholds any documents it otherwise agreed to 30 produce, it will provide a privilege log. Decl. ¶ 8 Ex. B. Ms. Hawkins’s
 31 suggestions to the contrary are simply unfounded. Mot. at 9:16–10:6. There is no 32 further relief to be provided. Ms. Hawkins’s cited cases are inapposite, as they 33 merely address the information to provide once a specific document is withheld on 34 this basis, Underwriters at Lloyd’s London v. Bear LLC, 2016 WL 3092120 (S.D.
 35 Cal. June 2, 2016), or provide the exact relief to which Kroger has already agreed—
 36 a privilege log for any withheld documents, Caccamise v. Credit One Bank, N.A., 37 2019 WL 1900908 (S.D. Cal. Apr. 26, 2019).

1        These requests ask Kroger to identify “products” that it “ha[s] considered at 2 different times” to be “primary competitors” to KBC, and every “Kroger Bread
 3 product” it “sold” with PHO during 8.5 years. Dkt. 69-2 Exs. 1, 7. These requests
 4 are plainly irrelevant to this action—they seek information solely about products
 5 not at issue. See Red, 2011 WL 13128159 (denying motion to compel in trans fat
 6 class action to “identify all products [defendant] sold during the relevant period”).
 7 They are overbroad for the same reason. Producing information spanning 8.5 years 8 regarding irrelevant products is disproportionate to the benefit, if any, of such 9 discovery.<sup>6</sup> Ms. Hawkins also fails to show this discovery meets the threshold 10 Mantolete requirements. Most important, information about competition is 11 proprietary. See Zheng-Lawson v. Toyota, 2019 WL 3413253, at *2–4 (N.D. Cal.
 12 July 29, 2019) (recognizing competitor analysis as proprietary). Ms. Hawkins does 13 not dispute that this information—or any information to which Kroger objected on 14 this basis—is in fact proprietary. Mot. at 9:1–13. Rather, she suggests the 15 protective order in place grants her full access to all proprietary information. Id.
 16 Not so. Ms. Hawkins must show that this commercially sensitive information is 17 highly relevant, and the need for its production outweighs the risk of substantial 18 harm by disclosing it. See DirecTV v. Trone, 209 F.R.D. 455, 459–60 (C.D. Cal.
 19 Aug. 14, 2002); Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c)(1)(G). She does not, nor could she. These 20 requests are also impermissibly vague—“competitor” by what measure? What are 21 the metrics for “primary”? When are the referenced “different times”?<sup>7</sup>

22

23

24

<sup>6</sup> The Court has no obligation to rewrite requests that are overbroad, vague, or irrelevant. E.g., Van Patten v. Vertical Fitness Grp., 2013 WL 1899724, at *2 (S.D. Cal. May 7, 2013) (“This RFP is overbroad. The Court will not rewrite it.”).

25

27

28

<sup>7</sup> Ms. Hawkins responds to all of Kroger’s “vague and ambiguous” objections by summarily stating that “[th]e] terms are not vague as used in their context.” Mot. at 8:19–20. She does not bother to expound, or even begin to explain how her document requests are stated with the requisite “particularity” under Rule 34(b)(1)(A). She fails to meet her burden to overcome these objections.

1           2. Product Feedback (RFP Nos. 11, 20)<sup>8</sup>

2           These requests seek all documents referencing “call center feedback”
 3 regarding KBC, and communications with customers in response to “any complaint
 4 about the ingredients” in KBC since 2006. Dkt. 69-2 Exs. 2, 8. Ms. Hawkins
 5 purportedly offered to narrow these requests to documents concerning trans fat or 6 PHO (Mot. at 4:23–24), but that does not render them relevant or proportional. Ms.
 7 Hawkins has not shown she is entitled to this proprietary information. See DirecTV,
 8 209 F.R.D. at 459–60; see also Toyota, 2019 WL 3413253, at *2 (recognizing 9 customer surveys as confidential and proprietary). Nor does she do anything to 10 clarify how this would be “likely to substantiate” class allegations—a showing she 11 is required to make. See supra at 6. If Ms. Hawkins intends to posit this goes to 12 numerosity—which Kroger does not concede—there are “less burdensome means” 13 to obtain such discovery. Gusman, 298 F.R.D. at 596 (denying discovery because 14 “plaintiff has less intrusive and burdensome means” to obtain numerosity evidence).
 15 To the extent Ms. Hawkins intends to argue it bears on Kroger’s knowledge, that 16 issue is irrelevant to class certification. See Red, 2011 WL 13128159, at *3 17 (denying pre-certification motion to compel as to defendant’s knowledge of alleged 18 product issues). These requests also fail as vague, e.g., feedback from whom?

19           3. Employees and Third Parties (RFP Nos. 2, 3, 4)

20           Ms. Hawkins seeks “[a]ll organizational charts” reflecting, and “documents
 21 sufficient to identify” employees “involved in” or “third parties with whom YOU
 22 contracted for services” in “research, MARKETING, ADVERTISEMENT, 23 manufacturing, or development” of KBC. Dkt. 69-2 Ex. 8. As for organizational

 25           

<sup>8</sup> Kroger maintains all of its objections that the requests are duplicative. Ms.
 26 Hawkins does not dispute her requests are duplicative, but rather argues they are 27 permitted because Kroger is excused from producing the same documents twice.
 28 Mot. at 10:15–26. She confuses duplicative requests with unreasonably duplicative requests, which should be prohibited. *See Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(2)(C); Heilman v.
 Silva*, 2015 WL 1632693, at *7 (S.D. Cal. Apr. 13, 2015) (denying motion to compel request on the sole ground that it was duplicative of another request).

charts (RFP 2), Kroger responded it has none from 2011 through 2015 within its possession, custody, or control. Id. Ms. Hawkins does not explain why this response is insufficient, nor could she, as nothing exists to compel. Grossman v. Directors Guild of Am., Inc., 2018 WL 5914242, at *7 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 22, 2018) (“Because defendant represents it located no responsive nonprivileged documents, nothing more is required.”). In any case, she fails to illustrate how documents during these expansive 8.5 or 14-year periods, identifying employees “involved” in any of the listed fields, are relevant or proportional at this stage. Red, 2011 WL 14128159, at *2 (denying motion to compel the same discovery in trans fat case where plaintiff made “no showing” it was relevant to class certification). They are not. Moreover, these requests are vague—“research” of what? What kind of “development”? What constitutes a “contract for services”?

4. Labeling Changes (RFP Nos. 5, 6, 7, 8, 10)

These requests ask for “exemplars” of labels from January 2006 through the present and their dates of use, documents concerning potential “changes” to the labels and “reasons” therefor, and Kroger’s marketing strategy for KBC, since January 2006. Dkt. 69-2 Exs. 2, 8. Kroger agreed to produce—and did produce—copies of KBC labels from 2011 through 2015, and agreed to produce documents sufficient to identify the periods during which they were used, to the extent within its possession, custody, or control. Id.; Decl. ¶ 7. Ms. Hawkins does not explain how this is insufficient, other than to say, without reason, it is somehow “suspect.” Mot. at 12:26–27. Nor does she clarify how any contemplated “changes” to the labels or marketing “strategies” have any bearing on class certification—they do not. And again, she does not satisfy the Mantolete test for class discovery. Requiring this expansive proprietary discovery, whether for five years or fourteen, is simply not proportional, as it has no significance at this stage. See DirecTV, 209 F.R.D. at 459–60; see also Rich v. Hewlett-Packard Co., 2009 WL 10628294, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 14, 2009) (design and marketing strategies are proprietary).

1                   5.       Retention Policies (RFP No. 1)

2                   Ms. Hawkins seeks “written document retention policies” since 2006. Dkt.
 3 69-2 Ex. 8. Kroger responded with valid objections, confirmed it was preserving
 4 documents per its legal obligations, and that, to the extent it agrees to produce
 5 documents responsive to any request, it would “inform plaintiff, if after a 6 reasonable search” it did not locate any. Id. That is more than sufficient. Retention
 7 policies are not relevant to the claims or class certification. Beem v. Providence
 8 Health & Servs., 2011 WL 13228175, at *4 (E.D. Wash. July 7, 2011) (denying 9 motion to compel, retention policies are “peripheral matter” “related to the ongoing 10 discovery disputes . . . rather than pertaining to the merits”); In re USA Comm. Mtg.
 11 Co., 2010 WL 11538037, at *10 (D. Nev. June 9, 2010) (same).<sup>9</sup> Nor is the undue 12 burden of producing 14 years’ of policies proportional to the benefit, if any.

13                   6.       PHO and Trans Fat (RFP Nos. 13, 17, 25)

14                   Ms. Hawkins asks for “all documents” that “discuss [PHO] or trans fat”; 15 “relat[e] to the effects of” trans fat on “humans or animals” dating back to 2006; or 16 relate to a 2006 “press release” regarding fried chicken. Dkt. 69-2 Exs. 2, 8. Ms.
 17 Hawkins cannot credibly claim that “all documents” discussing PHO or trans fat
 18 over 14 years is not overbroad—it is. The other requests are likewise impermissibly
 19 overbroad and disproportionate, capturing documents involving products and issues
 20 that have no bearing on this case, for well over a decade. Nor do these amorphous
 21 requests state with “reasonable particularity” what they are seeking. Fed. R. Civ. P.
 22 34(b)(1)(A). Moreover, the sought discovery does not go to class certification, nor

23                   

 24                   <sup>9</sup> Further, unlike in authority cited by Ms. Hawkins, Kroger has not indicated
 25 that any documents have been destroyed pursuant to such a policy. Mot. at 6:11–24
 26 (citing Montgomery v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 2015 WL 11233390, at *2–3 (S.D.
 27 Cal. Sept. 4, 2015)). Ms. Hawkins attempts to manufacture this issue by misstating 28 Kroger’s discovery response (Mot. at 13:25–27), which merely explained Kroger lacks information regarding the “unique number of buyers of all bread crumbs in California.” Dkt. 69-2 Ex. 7 at 4. The other cited case is likewise inapposite, as the plaintiff there only sought policies at three discrete points in time, and not, as here, all retention policies without limitation over 14 years. See Sharma v. BMW of N.
Am. LLC, 2016 WL 1019668 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 15, 2016).

1 does Ms. Hawkins even attempt to show the Mantolete prerequisite. To the extent
 2 she intends to argue this bears on Kroger’s knowledge of the purported effects of 3 trans fat, that makes no difference. Red, 2011 WL 13128159, at *3 (rejecting 4 defendant’s “knowledge” as grounds for discovery of “effects” of trans fat).

5 7. Manufacturing (RFP Nos. 14, 15 and Rog. Nos. 4, 5, 7, 8)

6 These requests seek documents and information regarding who 7 “manufactured, distributed, or sold” KBC; where it was manufactured; the “amount
 8 of PHO and trans fat” and proposed or actual “changes thereto” and costs thereof;
 9 and the “composition, source, and vendors” of PHO. Dkt. 69-2 Exs. 7, 8. Kroger
 10 responded that during 2011 through 2015, it sold the product, which contained less
 11 than 0.5 grams of trans fat. Id. Ex. 7 at 7. Kroger purchased the KBC through a 12 third-party supplier, but is not aware of the entity that “manufactured” KBC. Id.
 13 Ex. 7 at 4–11. As a result, Kroger is not able to provide the requested information.
 14 Id. No further relief can be granted. Nor is Ms. Hawkins entitled to further 15 responses, because the requests are overbroad, encompassing a prohibitively wide
 16 array of matters over 8.5 years, including proprietary strategy and development
 17 information, that have no bearing at this stage. DirecTV, 209 F.R.D. at 459–60.
 18 Ms. Hawkins has not evidenced she satisfies the Mantolete test. Red, 2011 WL 19 13128159, at *3–4 (denying pre-certification motion to compel “costs” and 20 “amounts” of “ingredients in products at issue” and “identity” of “suppliers, 21 vendors or distributors”). These requests are also vague, e.g., what is a “source” of 22 PHO, and to which role does “distributor” refer?

23 8. “0g Trans Fat Per Serving” (RFP No. 16)

24 This request seeks “all documents” Kroger “contend[s] support or 25 substantiate the following statement used on” KBC: “0g Trans Fat Per Serving.”
 26 Dkt. 69-2 Ex. 2. This is an improper and premature contention request bearing on a 27 disputed issue central to this action. Courts routinely deny motions to compel 28 contention requests, particularly where, as here, they are served early in discovery.

1 Trident Mgmt. v. GLF Constr. Corp., 2017 WL 3011144 (E.D. La. July 14, 2017)
 2 (contention document requests are “premature” as the parties are in the midst of 3 exchanging discovery”).<sup>10</sup> The request is also overbroad and unduly burdensome in 4 that it spans 14 years and multiple products, and requires the production of “all 5 documents” that in any way “support” the referenced statement. Even if identifying 6 such documents were feasible, the burden of production would not be proportional
 7 to the parties’ needs at this time. See Council, 2012 WL 4513605, at *3 (“[F]orcing
 8 [a party] to respond to contention requests for documents” is not “sufficiently 9 productive to justify the burden that responding would entail.”). Moreover, it fails 10 to state with “reasonable particularity” the documents it seeks. Id. (requests for 11 documents responding to legal arguments lack sufficient particularity).

12 9. Pricing, Revenues, and Sales (RFP Nos. 18, 24 and Rog. No. 1)

13 These requests ask for documents regarding the “wholesale or retail” price of 14 KBC, and annual revenue and quarter “unit sales” from KBC in California. Dkt. 69-
 15 2 Exs. 1, 2. As to the “unit sales” (Rog. 1), Kroger responded it “lacks information 16 . . . to show the unique number of buyers of all bread crumbs in California.” Id. Ex.
 17 7 at 4. If this was intended to identify the number of putative class members, it
 18 fails, as the requested discovery does not provide that information (Ms. Hawkins 19 herself admits to buying around 90 units of KBC, Dkt. 1 ¶¶ 71–72). See Ortolani, 20 2018 WL 324813, at *3 (denying motion to compel as requested employee records 21 “would not likely substantiate” commonality). Nor is this information “likely” to 22 substantiate any other class allegation. Red, 2011 WL 13128159, at *3 (denying 23 pre-certification motion to compel prices and revenues in trans fat case). Ms.
 24 Hawkins makes no argument to the contrary. And given the breadth and irrelevance
 25 of this discovery, and stage of the case, production is not proportional to the burden

26
 27 <sup>10</sup> While Rule 33 permits certain contention interrogatories, Rule 34 has no
 28 corollary for document requests. Council on Am.-Islam Relations Action Network, Inc. v. Schlussel, 2012 WL 4513605, at *3 (E.D. Mich. Oct. 2, 2012).

1 of producing this proprietary information. Supra at 9; see Organogenesis Inc. v.
 2 Ness, 2016 WL 3002375, at *4 (D. Nev. May 23, 2016) (sales data are proprietary).

3 10. Preparation of Discovery Responses (Rog. No. 2)

4 This request inquires about individuals who “participated . . . or in any way
 5 assisted” in answering discovery, or searched, collected, reviewed, or produced
 6 documents, and the “nature” of their “involvement.” Dkt. 69-2 Ex. 1. This is 7 overbroad in that it encompasses attorney work product and irrelevant individuals
 8 involved only for purposes of litigation, like document vendors, legal secretaries,
 9 and IT personnel. See Katiroll Co., Inc. v. Kati Roll & Platters Inc., 2014 WL
 10 12634921, at *6 (D.N.J. Apr. 8, 2014) (denying motion to compel individuals’ 11 names by similar interrogatory). Moreover, if Ms. Hawkins is looking for 12 individuals with personal knowledge of the claims and defenses, there is a “less 13 burdensome means” to obtain it—Rule 26 initial disclosures, which Kroger has 14 already provided. Requiring production of this sweeping discovery is not 15 proportional to the need for it, most of which has no bearing on this litigation.

16 C. Ms. Hawkins Is Not Entitled to Fees.

17 Contrary to her contention, Ms. Hawkins is not entitled to fees for bringing 18 this motion. “The Court must not order [] payment if the movant filed the motion 19 before attempting in good faith [to meet and confer],” the “nondisclosure” was 20 “substantially justified,” or if “other circumstances” make the award “unjust.” Fed.
 21 R. Civ. P. 37(a)(5)(A); Thomas-Byass, 2015 WL 5568609, at *2. Ms. Hawkins’s
 22 requests were overbroad, vague, irrelevant, and not proportional at this stage,
 23 among other defects, as set forth above, and Kroger’s objections on these bases
 24 were warranted. Further, Ms. Hawkins brought this motion without sufficiently 25 meeting and conferring, and without bothering to explain the grounds for her 26 expansive discovery requests. No basis exists for awarding her fees.

27 V. CONCLUSION

28 Kroger respectfully requests Ms. Hawkins’s motion to compel be denied.
